

E4J High-Level Conference and Call for Proposals "Educating for the Rule of Law – Inspire. Change. Together." - 7–9 October 2019 - Vienna, Austria

Dear expert,

The Education for Justice (E4J) initiative will hold a High-Level Conference at the Vienna International Centre (Vienna, Austria) from 7 to 9 October 2019 and is currently accepting submissions under the Call for Proposals "Educating for the Rule of Law – Inspire. Change. Together."

The objective of the High-Level Conference is to bring together over 200 stakeholders from both education and justice fields. The event will allow policymakers from different areas (such as Ministries of Education and Ministries of Justice), educators and academics to build bridges and propose innovative ways to empower the next generation of change makers.

E4J is an innovative and comprehensive educational initiative, which aims at building the capacity of educators to equip the next generation with a better understanding and an ability to address the issues that can undermine the rule of law. The initiative strives to achieve this through the creation and dissemination of educational activities and materials designed for primary, secondary and tertiary levels. These resources are developed in close collaboration with organizations such as UNESCO and in consultation with academia, educators and students themselves. This High-Level Conference will provide an opportunity to showcase many of these materials and discuss their practical application in thematic workshops. For more information on the High-Level Conference, please visit our website.

In advance of the High-level Conference, we launched a Call for Proposals. This call is addressed to children and youth and offers an excellent opportunity to share their experiences, hopes and ideas about the linkages between education and the rule of law.

We welcome new and innovative ideas and encourage the use of different media. Successful submissions will demonstrate how children and youth can be an agent of change to strengthen and promote the rule of law, to spearhead this change and to inspire others in their communities. There will be a selected number of entries that will be showcased to the international audience attending the High-Level Conference in October. The winners' work will also be featured on UNODC social media channels. For more information on the Call for Proposals, please see the attached flyer or visit our website.

INSPIRE CHANGE TOGETHER

7-9 October 2019 | Vienna, Austria

United Nations
Call for Proposals

What can youth do to fight corruption, organized crime and other threats that are impacting our world? How can we make the world a trusted, safe and inclusive place? How is rule of law influencing your life? What recommendations do you have for a sustainable and peaceful future?

The United Nations wants to hear from you about your experiences, hopes and ideas about the linkages between education and the rule of law, and how youth can take action to strengthen and promote the rule of law. Successful proposal submitters will have the opportunity to present their ideas in Vienna to the participants of the Education for Justice (E4J) conference.
